THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1872.

The horse disease is rapidly spreading throughout New York State. In Rochester and Buffalo trade is almost at a standstill, Syracuse suffers scarcely less, and in New York city the street railroads have the epizootic in their stables. The Secretary of the Treasury has issued instructions to the Collectors of Customs at most the Lake ports bordering on the State of New York, to prohibit the importation of horses from Canada for the present. unless they are perfectly satisfied that the animals are free from contagious diseases. Numerous letters have been received at the Treasury Department at Washington, on the subject of the epidemic, one of which says that it is so wide-spread that the writer is safe in placing nine tenths of the horses in the city of Buffalo and neighborhood, as an instance, as affected by the disease; but he adds, that while it is regarded as dangerous, it yields to proper treatment when applied in season. The general impression is that it is not contagious, but is epidemic.

The second day's running at the the Pimlico course, near Baltimore, was quite equal to the first, although the weather was uppropitious. Mr. Sanford's bay horse Preakness won the $600 purse in the first race. The $500 purse for three year olds in the second race was won by an imported cola, Buckden, entered by M. A. Tully. The third race, a mile dash for two years olds, was won by Governor Bowie's colt, Catesby, his only competitor being Count D'Orsay, a chestnut colt owned by Mr. Belmout. The time made in this race (1:462) was something extraordinary for a two year old. The fourth race (mile heats best three in five, purse $1,000) was won by Tubman.

A telegram was received last night by the Secretary of State, from Mr. Bancroft, Minister of the United States at Berlin, announcing that the Emperor of Germany, after having given, with the highest sense of official duty, his personal attention to the subject of the San Juan boundary, and after the most careful study and deliberation, had arrived at a conclusion satisfactory to his own sense of justice, viz: That the claim of the United States of America is most in accordance with the true interpretation of the treaty of June 15, 1872.

The election in Baltimore, yesterday, for members of the first branch of the City Council resulted in the election of seventeen Democratic-Conservatives and three Radicals. The election passed off quietly although in some of the wards there were spirited contests. The total vote cast was 25,253, being 3,906 votes less than were cast last year for Mayor.

Mayor Hall appeared unexpectedly in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in New York yesterday, and announced that he had received a note from the District Attorney ordering him to attend the court and renew his bail. He said he had been informed that new indictments, covering the old ones, had been preferred. The District Attorney fixed the surety at $5,000. Mayor Hall said he was auxious for trial, whereupon the District Attorney requested him to plead to the indictment. The Mayor then pleaded not guilty. The District Attorney's associate asked for delay, but at the request of the Mayor the case was proceeded with, and Mr. Peckham made the opening address for the prosecution, after which an adjournment was had until to-day.

FALL WEATHER AND WARM BLOOD, -- We should never allow ourselves to forget that nature intended us for warm-blooded animals .--In this climate of surprising changes, we are very apt to forget it, especially in the fall and spring. At such seasons, when we freeze and simmer on alternate days, there is engendered in us a certain recklessness, which takes no heed of cold or heat, dampness or dryness, and receives all temperatures with the same front, generally a defenseless one. It is certainly very troublesome to change front as often as the weather, and there is a prejudice in American minds against such change, which has a great deal to do with the rapidly increasing population of our graveyards. People like to have some stability of purpose, and if they can have it in nothing else they will try to have it in their dress. They will not make a change until they make a permanent one for the season. No matter how hot it is in the spring. they will wear spring clothes until summer, and no matter how cool it may be in August. summer clothes must be worn until fall shall actually set in. Thus ofttimes suddenly and with sad results we find ourselves approaching the condition of the fishes and lizards, -for the chill, that alert forerunner of disease, is ever ready, in our climate, to take advantage of circumstances.

We suppose that there are no people in the world so indifferent to the demands of the weather-especially cool weather-as Americans, and one reason of this is that very many of us are ashamed to keep warm. To wrap up and button up, and to put down windows whenever there is a chilling change in the air, argues, to most minds, a namby-pamby eagerness to be well that is repuguant to the hardy American soul. So, rather than be laughed at, we shiver. We prefer tragedy to comedy, the grave to the ridiculous. - Home and Soci ety, in Scribner's for November.

THE MEETING LAST NIGHT.

Notwithstanding the inelemency of the weather a large and intelligent audience assembled at the new Market building last night where speeches were made by Col. William S. Gilman, of Richmond, and Messrs. Lewis McKenzie, Linden Kent, C. E. Stuart and D. S. Delaplane.

If the fame acquired by Col. Gilman during this canvass, as a public speaker, had preceded ioned political treat, there certainly was not the slightest cause for disappointment, for a finer speech, breathing a true Virginia spirit, full of sound reasoning, logical deductions, brilliant orhappy allusions and illustrations, has not been heard in Alexandria for many a day. His audience was perfectly delighted and though he spoke upwards of one hour and a half, there were none present who did not regret when he concluded, and a more decided effect has not been produced by any address made here during the campaign.

He took a retrospective view of political affairs showing how the South, after the war, had been more than willing to accept the situation for the sake of peace and harmony again, but how her overtures had been spurned by the Radicals in power, and charged directly upon Gen. Grant the inflictions of all the subsequent woes upon our section, by the appoint ment and continuance in office of men whose sole purpose was to grow rich at the expense of an already impoverished people and to manipulate the ignorant for the purpose of controlling the elections, and continuing in power the pres ent administration. In this connection he cited the amount of internal revenue collected in certain districts of North and South Carolina, sums paid out for its collection, in some instances the latter amount far exceeding the collections; and from the sworn testimony of witnesses before the Ku Klux Investigating Committee, he harrowed up the feelings of his audience by drawing a vivid but no less leveller-have to look after the level rod men, true picture of the suffering condition of the people of our sister State of South Carolina. where fraud and corruption have grown so bold and become so transparent that the Radicals outside of the State no longer attempted to paliate the offences which stink in the nostrils of every honest man throughout the land.

The speaker was severe in his criticism upon the "straightouts" and those who were so particular in reference to "record" and most hap pily illustrated the "inconsistency of the human mind" by citing the record of the very men who now say they cannot support Mr. Greeley on account of his "record" showing that these very gentlemen were unable in any justance to show a "clear bill." Robert Tombs, A. H. Stevens, Henry A. Wise, Jas. Lyons and others were each tried but not one could stand the test. Col. G. eulogized Mr. Greeley and throwing behind him his acti-bellum and bellum record reviewed his course since the war and showed to weep because there were no more relatives upon whom to bestow offices.

He concluded with an appeal to every Virginian to do his duty, and even if unsuccessful It appears from a report to the National in the national contest, to save the State, and next most touchingly and appropriately did he recite the story of Coriolanus, who, when beseiging Rome, and when all other efforts had failed. was dissuaded from his purpose of destroying the city by the importunity of his aged mother, The official figures of the Indiana election and the city thus saved; so said the speaker your aged mother Virginia, with only a mother's the hour of her future greatness when she shall have recovered her strength and vigor, and once more sit "mistress of the world, she will not have to say, "I was an hungered and ye gave me no meat; thirsty and ye gave me no and adds to the beauty of the scenery. Fortu drink; naked and ye clothed me not; sick and nately the corn was all cut up, so the fodder imprisoned and ye visited me not; depart from me ye cursed, I know ye not.'

The speech throughout was received with the warmest plaudits, and the speaker was compelled frequently to suspend his remarks for a minute or so to allow the audience time to express their great delight at his happy hits and well pointed anecdotes. As we have said above the speech has not been equalled by any heard here during the canvass, and was fully appreciated, and Col. G. will long be remembered by the people of Alexandria as a finished orator, a most effective speaker, and one of the best posted politicians of this day; and he is an evidence, that in the young men of the State, liver us, as the mild ones are bad enough. Virginia has still cause to be proud of the abilities of her sons.

At the conclusion of Col. Gilman's address Mr. McKenzie took the stand and "figured out" the election of Greeley and Brown to the satisfaction of his hearers, interspersing his rock species and the flavor is thought better by data with some humorous remarks which elicited much applause. He read the address of the Bankers of New York city urging the necessity for the re-election of Grant and commented upon it with just severity. He too urged the people to do their duty and trust to Providence for a deliverance from the present corruption and those who have a prejudice against him which stalks abroad in open day.

He could not, however, let the occasion pass last one held the office one month and found without expressing his entire and full accord the road so rocky and crooked that he retired with the cause which had been so ably and in disgust—and so will I just now from this eloquently advocated. He would vote for epistle. Horace Greeley from a higher consideration than that of mere feeling, because it was his conscientious conviction that it was his duty to do so. Like Saul of Tarsus who had persecuted with honest, but relentless cruelty the followers of Christ, yet was afterwards the warmest advocate and defender of the faith, Mr. Greeley with honest convictions and purity of purpose had at times in the past been our bitterest enemy, yet was the first to administer with the same honesty, the soothing remedies for his own wrongs, and as he was then honest in his persecution it is a guarantee to us now that he will likewise be honest in his efforts to heal the wounds and alleviate the sufferings to which his teachings may have contributed. Col. Gilman there was nothing more to be if he so desired. said-nothing more necessary to be said. Zet I NDEVELOPED VIGOR.-The feeble and debilitated usually fency they are in a more hopeless condition than they really are The resources of nature are not easily exhauted. Even when strength and appetite fail, when the eyes are heavy and in treless the complexion eyes are many attenuables, the body attenua-ted, and the mind depressed, there is generally a reserve of latent power behind such pa pable evidences of weakness. Various modes o treat-ment are resorted to by physicians in the hope of developing and rendering available this storof sleeping vitality, but the surest, and indeed the only thoroughly safe and reliable means of awakening the dormant energies of the system is a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Electrieny, shower baths, the flesh brush, sea bathing. &c., any be well enough in their way, as auxiliaries, but they do not reach the source of the evil. All physical debility proceeds either from a derangement of the functions of the assimilating, secretive and vital organs, or from a st ggish constitution. In either case, and also in cases where both causes exist, the Bitters will invariably produce an immediate and salutary gerous alkaloids, too often administered as tonics, can be otherwise than deleter ous under such circumstances, and to giv mercury is positively criminal.
